

THE EVENING PAPER
Contains the News of To-day.
THE MORNING PAPER
The Events of Yesterday.

The Lima Times-Democrat.

READ THE NEWS WHILE IT IS FRESH.
The Times-Democrat Contains it All.
ONLY TEN CENTS A WEEK.

VOL. X, NO. 94,

LIMA, OHIO, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1894.

PRICE THREE CENTS

HAWAIIAN DEBATE.

Mr. Bland's Bill For the Coinage of the Silver Seigniorage.

A CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.

Three important Subjects Will Be Disposed of in the House This Week—The Senate Will Take Final Action on the Report of the Federal Elections Bill; Program of the House and Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Hawaiian debate, Mr. Gandy's bill for the coinage of the silver seigniorage in the treasury, and the O'Neill-Joy contested election case, and perhaps the fortifications appropriation bill will occupy the attention of the house during the coming week.

By an arrangement agreed upon just before the house adjourned Saturday the Hawaiian debate is to be extended until 10:30 this day, the special order for its consideration being modified so as to include a provision for a vote upon the Bondell resolution as well as the McCrary and Treadwell resolutions.

The committee on elections will serve the purpose of definitely deciding the issue in the house, if such a vote as on Thursday had the order not been modified, it was Mr. Bondell's intention to come to the front with his resolution. As it was a privileged question it could not have been passed, and might have resulted in additional complications, so that the Democrats, who were agreed, that the shorter way out of the difficulty would be to agree to a compromise.

As yet no Democrat has broken over party lines on the Hawaiian matter, as far as debate is concerned, and it seems likely that the McCrary resolution will pass by a strict party vote.

Mr. Holman, however, is still bent upon his first resolution concerning the action of Mr. St. Paul, and at the same time re-proposing the cause of the administration in attempting to restore the deposed queen. How much Democratic strength, if any, this resolution will command, is still problematical.

On Wednesday Mr. Bland will call up his bill for the coinage of the silver seigniorage, the amount of which is estimated to over $55,000,000, that can be had immediately if necessary to meet the wants of the treasury by the issuance of treasury notes similar to those issued under the act of 1890. Mr. Bland and many of his Democratic colleagues are strongly opposed to the bill, and hope that the house will not accept the proposal submitted by the same.

Franklin, official, expresses the belief and hope that the house will not accept the bill, this being based on the large amounts already reported it as having been deposited in the treasury at New York in anticipation of the delivery of the bonds.

DISPENSARY LAWS VIOLATED.

When an Arrest is Attempted a Battle Follows and Two Men Are Shot.

SPRINGFIELD, S. C., Feb. 5.—A warrant was placed on the heads of Sheriff Dean for Gadsden, William Scirocco, and two other sons, Welford, for violating their dispensary laws.

About 1 o'clock Saturday morning, Dr. Frank Massy Jackson, Wex and Post, went out to make the arrest. They reached Bailey's about midnight, but before they got to the house the whisky was out in a swamp. They saw Berry-moore and Dean, ordered them to hold up their hands, and then arrested them. The whisky was returned to the dispensary.

When the men were taken to the police station, they were told that the police had no authority to arrest them.

The constables then went to Ward-Ballou's house and met him in the act of discharging his carbine.

He did not obey and was shot in the head. Massy shot him in the breast, killing him instantly. No whisky was captured.

The constables held an inquest, but no verdict has been reached. This took place about a mile and a half east of Wexford. Ballou recently moved from the mountain. The Moore also came from the mountain.

STRIKE ON THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

The Employes Will Stop Work to Demand the Raising of the Costs.

TACOMA, Feb. 5.—Cipher telegram from chiefs of the Federated North Pacific employees to St. Paul, indicating that a strike will be called if the legislation of the appropriation committee to cover the appropriation bill forward as now stands, the pendency of others.

A strike in a row will probably be initiated over a publication now going on in the Union Leader, Read in a social form of Professor George G. Foster's "Social Economics."

During the last Congress, it will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

The Republicans will take the position indicated by the minority report, that there is no silver legislation in the treasury, the bullion against which notes were issued under the act 1890 not having been coined. They will also take the position that while the coinage value of the silver legislation is $161,914,961, it is worth only $97,156,632, or, in other words, that the other obligations of the government, which were issued if based upon the full coinage value as silver were at par ($1.20 per ounce) would only be worth about 35 cents on the dollar and could only be sustained by the credit of the government. Mr. Bland expects that the debate upon his bill will not last over two weeks.

On Friday the O'Neill-Joy contested election case will come up and, if decided, then will be before the Senate by the fortification appropriation bill, if being the legislation of the appropriation committee to cover the appropriation bill forward as now stands.

The Republicans will probably be inclined over a publication now going on in the Union Leader, Read in a social form of Professor George G. Foster's "Social Economics."

During the last Congress, it will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print, granted in connection with the debate on the Homestead bill, that a column of 12 columns by 12 columns, printed in several chapters of a treatise on George's volume, "Principles and Policy," by printing it as part of the Congressional Record, it became subject to the free franking privilege of members, and in particular to several million copies were distributed free through the mails as pamphlets. The abuse of the publication in the Senate was then widely commented upon.

Within the last few days the Democrats have noted that chapters of Gannett's book, "The Greatest Heaters," during the last Congress, will be remembered, that under the general leave to print,

